The Bill-City 'Young Hen's Christian As-sociation Building—A Deception Well Kept Up-Death—Political.

It will be remembered, as stated in this correspondence, that during Fair-week there was comparatively no tobacco sold. For the previous week, however, ending the 9th, the sates amounted to 42,800 pounds. For that just closed, ending the 23d, asks advanced to 56,600 pounds, showing an increase of 13,800 pounds. Sales from October 1, 1885, reached 579,500 pounds. For the corresponding period this year they were only 129,300 pounds, exhibiting a decrease of 450,100 pounds. One reason for this failing off is owing to the fact that primings were counted in the sales last year, while this year such a course has not been pursued for the reason that none have been offered during the season. It is the general opinion here among warehousemen and ethers that the present low prices will keep back the new crop, which usually begins to make its appearance in the market in November. Such, indeed, is the advice of both commission-merchants and buyers. It is therefore probable that none will come in until towards Christmas, when some planters will be compelled to raise money to meet annual payments. This delay will also afford a limited opportunity to unload the heavy stocks now on hand and prices may thereby be enhanced; at least such is the opinion of those who are well posted in everything that relates to tobacco.

In addition to what has already been said the opinion of those who are well posted in everything that relates to tobacco.

In addition to what has already been said in the Dispatch with reference to the new building of the Young Men's Christian Association, the near approach of its formal dedication renoers it pertinent to add that it is constructed of brick, trimmed in brownstone, and has been completed at a cost of $17,000, including furniture. It contains a reading-room, parlor, secretary's office, hall with a scating-capacity of 500, a chess- or amuse mert-room, smokers' room, directors' room, and class-rooms, with a complete symmasium, together with bathrooms, where hot. cold-, and showerbaths and closets will be arranged.

The building will be opened on Thursday, November 5th, when the ladies of the Association will receive from 10 A. M. until 5 P. M. At 8 F. M. the formal opening or day. November 5th, when the ladies of the Association will receive from 10 A. M. antil 5 P. M. At 8 F. M. the formal opening or dedication will take place, in which all of the ministers of the city will participate. N. C. Manson, Esq., mayor of the city, and Mr. L. L. Marks, president of the Petersburg Association, will deliver addresses. The eccession is expected to be an enjoyable as well as profitable one. It is a day that has long been looked forward to with the deep anxiety as one likely to open a deep anxiety as one likely to open a new era of usefulness to an associa-tion that has already accomplished much good among the young men of the city. Hitherto they have not only been in very circumscribed quarters, but so circuitous was the way to their rooms that it was im-possible for a stranger to find them after possible for a stranger to find them after entering the building without making minute inquiries. Now they have a home that reflects credit upon the city and upon all who participated in its construction, and especially is this applicable to the indefatigable secretary, Mr. Licklider.

Touching the statement furnished the Discaled vestratay in connection with the Dispatch yesterday in connection with the death of W. H. Rhodes, that he was, perhaps, the "last survivor of Dr. Kane's Arctic expedition," I regret to have to say that the whole story turns out to have been a sheer fabrication; yet it is somewhat sooth-ing to know that the entire press of this ing to know that the entire press of this city, tegether with the community generally, was similarly imposed upon. Rhodes, on his death-bed, before half a dozen gentlemen, several of whom were members of the Young Men's Christian Association, and who visited him in the interest of his spiritual welfare, stated that he "could not die with a lie on his lips," and that there was no truth whatever in a deception he had encouraged and sanctioned for many was no truth whatever in a deception he had encouraged and sanctioned for many years. The claim originated in a bar-room in jest and he was encouraged to keep it up, and he certainly did it well. Although illuterate to so great an extent as to be unable to read, he had become so thoroughly posted with the details of Dr. Kane's narrative that the most careful readers of that account of Arctic exploration were deceived. He further stated, in the same conversation, that "he had never been out of sight of land in his life." This, of course, explodes also the statement contained in the papers of this city that he had been a member of Walkor's Niestagua expedition, and perhaps as well.

Intelligence was received in this city yesterday of the death on Monday morning of Mr. Albert Thornhill, of the Bent-Creek neighborhood, in Appomatical county. He was the father of Rev. L. R. The Staunton Lodge of Auclent Free and Accepted Masons, No. 13, was chartered the 28th of October, 17s6, by Grand Master Edmund Bandolph, who was Attorney-General under the Administration of General Washington as President. The officers of the Lodge were Alexander Long, worshipful master; Wildam Chambers, serior warden, and John Paris, junior warden. During the earlier years of its history the lodge meetings were held at the houses of the members illi a later day, when it had a place of allode in the Stannton Academy Unilding. In 1853 it was located in the property new known as the Masonic Temple, which it owns to fee simple. SENSATION IN FREDERICK. A Woman Shot by Her Husband-Crowd at Bay.

Crowd at Bay.

A Frederick (Md.) special says: A good deal of excitement was occasioned in this city to-day by the shooting of Mrs. Maggie Cronin by her husband, Daniel Cronin. The excitement was afterwards greatly intensitied by the circumstances attending the arrest of Cronin. The building in which the couple resided and in which the shooting took place is a small one-story-and-attic structure located on west Fourth street. Mr. and Mrs. Cronin were married during the late war, and after living together for some time, the husband left his wife and was absent from her for a period of fifteen or twenty years. About one year ago he returned here and induced her to live with him again. Recently some difficulty arose between them, which found its climax to-day when Mrs. Cronin told her busband that he had better pack up and again take his departure. She had hardly uttered the words before he drew out one of the two revolvers he had drew out one of the two revolvers be had pack up and again take his departure. She had hardly uttered the words before he drew out one of the two revolvers he had in his pockets and fired at her, the ball striking her right temple and ploughing across the side of her head, inflicting a painful, if not dangerous, wound. Mrs. Cronin ran screaming out of the building, crossed the street, and entered the house of a neighbor. Surgical aid was summoned.

The husband endeavered to escape from the rapidly-gathering crowd by climbing up into the attic of his house, where, after securely fastening the trap-door, he threatened to shoot any one who intruded upon him. Constables, policemen, and deputy sheriffs, in addition to about five hundred people, gathered in and about the house, but none ventured to attempt the arrest. Some of the scenes that followed were very ludicrous. Ladders were brought and raised against the small windows, in the gables, only to be quickly thrown down by the infuriated man inside. Policemen and others securely, protected from the range of Cronin's pistol, which was several times discharged by him, watched the windows and fired a number of shots at intervals into the roof and sides of the attic. Crowbars and cayenne pepper were then brought, but without avail. For two hours the men succeeded in holding the officers and crowd at bay, but finally began to parley, and promised to deliver himself up on condition that hee would be allowed to retain his arms and go to see his wife. He was promised this by several persons who knew him, and he thereupon came out from his place of refuge, and was taken into the house where his wife was. He had hardly entered the room before he made an effort to draw his pistol with the supposed intention of again atte apting her life. Seeing this, the crowd, already greatly excited, became still more incensed, and pulled hum out of the house, and it was with difficulty that the officers prevented him from being summarily dealt with. He was then hurried before a magistrate and committee to jail to a further hear

A Newark (N. J.) special says: A small, faded-looking woman told a queer story to Justice Roder here this morning. Yesterday she presented herself before the Justice and said that her husband, William Emerick, a cigarmaker, aged thirty-two years, lad stolen her watch and her two-year-old child, and that she desired him arrested. Justice toder told her that a husband could not steal his wife's goods or her child, as the law says what is hers is his. The woman then went away, but later in the evening she called on Officer Wriggins to arrest the man for drunkenness, and when he was behind the prison-bars she requested that he might be beld ral interest, but on next. Monday night the Democrats propose to have a "rousement" at the Opera-House, at which our candidate for Congress, Major Griffio, and Hon. John W. Daniel will address the sovereigns.

Your compositor played sad havoc with the ex-county judge and ex-independent candidate for Congress in this district when he "set him up" to the gaze of an admiring world as "Varmers," when it should have been Vanness. Alas! for a fame that perishes almost before it is attained.

man, and was worth about $30,000. About two years since last spring Emerick ceme round to our house, and was employed as a farm laborer, and stayed until the fall. My first husband, whose name was Hill, at that time gave him notice to leave, as he did not like Emerick's way of behaving. The latter, however, flatly refused to go from the place without me, and said we should never be parted. He made such threats and acted so strangely that, in order to save Hill's life and property, and the lives of my children, I consented to run away with him, and we fled to Canada." She says she afterwards returned to her husband, but was followed by Emerick, and she again ran away with him and came to Newark.

A New York telegram says: Two labor A New York telegram says: Two laboring men were saved from instant death on Saturday by the coolbeadedness and bravery of James Robinson, the well-known oarsman and athlete. They were employed on the masonry of a monster apartment-house in the course of erection on the corner of One-hundred-and-sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, and had succeeded in nearly completing the fifth story when a portion of the front wall, composed of terra-cotta trimmings, gave way. They struck the scaffold in their downward flight, and managed to grasp us outer edge. The noise scaffold in their downward flight, and man-aged to grasp its outer edge. The noise from the broken wall and the shouts of the imperiled men brought Robinson to the scene. When he reached the scaffold they were completely exhausted. He crawled out, and managed with difficulty to draw them both safely back upon the shaking boards. Several hundred panie-stricken spectators had assembled in the street be-low, and when they saw the men saved gave vent to a ringing cheer.

MALARIA.

No location, no section of the country is entirely free from malarial influences. In some localities, however, there is much greater suffering from this cause than in others. The climatic influences, the nature of the soil, and the condition the nature of the soil, and the condition of drainage, all tend in the South and West to make malarial fevers very prevalent at some seasons of the year. The suffering from malaria in the system is not confined to the time when under its influence, but continues as a result of the poisoning of the system from this cause. In the past it has been the custom to administer quantities of quinine, or quiminister quantities of quinine, or qui-nine and whiskey to overcome the effects of chills and fever, intermittent fever and all malarial fevers. This treatment is now condemned by the highest medical authorities, as it so frequently causes the patient to suffer afterwards from congen-tion and neuralgia, and cometimes deaf-tion and neuralgia, and cometiones dear-ness. These are troubles more particu-larly due to the use of quinine, but it is hardly necessary to dwell upon the ill-effects of whiskey in any case of fever. So long as there was no other specific known for malaria, so long the people had to rely upon these remedies and take the chances of relief from them and the almost certain ill effects which followed their use. But it is no longer necessary for any community to suffer from ma-larial troubles or these terrible after consequences. A remedy containing no whiskey, into the combination of which no dangerous acids enter, a purely vege-table alterative and tonic medicine with which iron is skilfully combined, is offered to the public as an anti-malarial. It is Brown's Inon BITTIES. Its prompt, efficient action upon the blood, eradicating the poison from the vital fluid and so preventing it from being taken up by the stomach, liver and kid-new makes it just the corrective needed in malaria. It also furnishes strength to these organs, and through them to the whole system, by cariching and vitalizing the blood. The blood is the life of the body. Diseased or poisoned blood will poison the whole body and produce dispoison the whole body and produce dis-ease in the whole organism. It is evi-dent that a medicine possessing the greatest efficiency in cleansing and puri-fying, enriching and strengthening the blood, is the best remedy for diseases which are due directly to blood poisoning. All chemists and physicians who have made an examination of Brown's Inon Bittens endorse this remedy as contain-ing these qualities to a superlative degree. For this reason so many physicians are For this reason so many physicians arescribe Brown's Inon Bittens in it mittent fevers and chills and fever. have never heard of a single case where it failed to be of benefit. We have hundreds of testimonials of cures of these diseases by Brown's IRON BITTERS, from persons who have suffered many times in the past and found no relief from any other remedies. Its effect is also won-derful in lassitude, the tired, exhausted, worn-out, depressed feelings; you know them. You have experienced them. the feeling of languor and lassitude, and give you clasticity, vigor and health. No other remedy has the power and strength combined with the purity and enriching qualities of Brown's Iron Bitters. That this is the case is testified to by the people who have used it, the physicians and chemists who have examined it and recommended it, and the great sales, which in five years have increased twenty fold. Brown's Inon BITTERS does not injure or discolor the teeth, and does not cause headache or constipation. All other iron medicines do. Beware of imitations.
